Canopy hiring team

Senior UX Designer

I am applying for the Senior UX Designer role at Canopy. You are building practice management software so accounting firms can spend time on clients instead of the work that buries them. I have not designed for accountants. I have spent seven years on the same kind of problem: complex B2B workflows for professionals who already have a system, and who will not adopt a prettier one if it asks them to relearn their day.

At Canopy, designers embed with product and engineering, research with customers, and stay through handoff. That is how I already work. For about a year at Entrata I was Product Lead with an owned engineering team, from research through ship. I use Figma when the canvas is faster and code when the behavior is the question. I use AI in my own process for synthesis, prototyping, and documentation, and I have designed AI in the product so staff can direct it, trust it, and stay in control.

That included an income-document flow that turned affordable-housing certification into an upload, and a bulk-upload workflow with visible mapping confidence, match buckets, and exception review before anything executed. I also redesigned a complex setup system inside the existing design system after usability testing showed staff already used that pattern as the map. After launch, 8,290 specials used the new targeting rules. At FamilySearch I guided third-party designers on a shared loop so volume did not become 26 one-offs.

I live in Pleasant Grove, Utah. I would welcome the chance to walk you through the work.

Sincerely,
Cody Duke
